〔講義の目的〕 Students in this course will have plenty of opportunities to improve their English reading and writing skills. In addition, students will also have many opportunities to share opinions and work together to improve overall understanding of how to use English phrases in academic writing. Finally, students will be introduced to the structure of paragraphs and essays.
〔講義の概要〕 Graded readers will be selected by students according to individual interest and level. Students must bring a book to class every day for sustained silent reading. Students should choose five sentences from at least 12 books and copy them into a notebook. Every two weeks students must finish one book and write a book report. Handouts will be used to introduce English paragraph structure (topic sentence, supporting sentences, concluding sentence) and essay structure (introduction, body, conclusion). Students will be given simple topics for essay writing as preparation for further academic English and science writing.
〔履修上の留意点〕 Reading is the best way to learn new English phrases, to reinforce existing vocabulary and grammar knowledge, and to learn about the world. Make an effort to read a little each day. Don't cram for an exam and then forget after the exam is over.
